TRAINING COURSE 5: COMMODITY VALUE CHAIN

This training covers the fundamentals of the 'commodity & energy value chain'. It touches on the basics of the physical flow of commodities. Attention is given to production, storage, transport and consumption and related capacities.

This training covers the following topics:

- The value chain
 - Physical flow
 - Security of supply
- Activities in the chain
 - Production
 - ❖ Exploration & production of fossil fuels (extraction)
 - ❖ Power generation
 - ❖ Production facilities
 - Storage
 - ❖ Security of supply
 - ❖ Storage facilities
 - ❖ Storage system operators
 - Transport
 - ❖ Transport facilities
 - ❖ Transmission system operators
 - ❖ Balancing & the nomination process
 - Consumption
 - ❖ Consumption & consumption facilities
- Relevant terminology
 - Upstream, midstream & downstream activities
- Pricing
 - Availability of capacity as price driving factor
 - Merit order
 - Weather circumstances

❖ Level:	Basic	No prerequisites
❖ Intensity:	30 minutes	Including examination
❖ Language:	Voice & text	English
❖ Including:	Examination	Certification upon passing

TRAINING COURSE 6: INSIDE INFORMATION

This training covers the fundamentals of 'inside information' under (various) market regulations. It touches on the definition and relevant criteria.

This training covers the following topics:

- Information vs. inside information
 - Qualification
 - Responsibility of professional
- Awareness of sensitivity
 - Crucial information
 - Careful treatment
- Relevant criteria
 - Product within scope of regulation
 - Non-public information
 - Precise information
 - Likely to have a significant price impact
- Interpretation of criteria
 - Product within scope of regulation
 - Non-public information
 - Precise information
 - Likely to have a significant price impact
- Acting based on inside information
 - Market abuse

INCLUDING EXAMINATION & CERTIFICATION

- Conduct
- Regulation
- Market abuse

Morality relates to ethics, whereas ethics is related to commandments and prohibitions. It concerns activities which are allowed or not allowed. Analogously, integrity involves conduct and misconduct. It concerns behavior and misbehavior. Ethical or unethical decisions relate to the debate about desirable and undesirable behavior. It involves the discussion about right or wrong. Ethics deals with moral dilemmas.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Evil
2. Moral development
3. Moral disengagement
4. Optimising morality
5. Moral stretching

Emotions often play a crucial role in the decision-making process. The fear factor can be one of the drivers impacting choices. Typically, this leads to underperformance. Eventually, it may even lead to unethical or non-integer behavior.

Stress is another relevant aspect that sets context. For some professionals this element is an important part of their profession. However, one could doubt whether enough attention is given to this factor. Is the individual conscious of this matter?

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Rationality versus irrationality
2. Performance
3. Multi-disciplinary approach
4. The human brain
5. Hormones
6. Pressure & stress
7. Market analysis

People often have an inappropriate view on reality. In addition, they could have difficulty interpreting reality, which leads to misconceptions or misperceptions, and, eventually, even to ethical blindness. After all, when making decisions, people are embedded in context. This context may be so strong that one feels forced to take certain decisions. Some of these feelings may be experienced only unconsciously, leading to a certain automatic acting, as if someone is on autopilot. This way, one can become ethically blind, meaning that one is unaware of making wrong decisions.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Environmental influences
 2. Subjectivity of ethicalness
 3. Ethical versus unethical cultures
 4. Complexity of today's world
 5. Complexity brings dilemmas
 6. Culture sets context

Conduct management refers to the set of procedural skills that organizations and professionals employ in their attempt to address and resolve discipline problems at work. It includes acknowledgment of responsible behaviors, correction of irresponsible and inappropriate behavior, gentle verbal reprimands, time-out for employees, notification of colleagues, reinforcement systems and a corporate code of conduct.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Emotional decisions & behaviour
2. Free will
3. Situationalism

Both rationale and emotions relate to the decision-making process of human beings. This automatically implies that both ratio and feelings impact our actions or behavior. Psychological aspects, including mental traps, can impact a professional's performance, as well as one's attitude.

The decision-making process of human beings is optimized by various natural strategies. Heuristics are examples of these; they are cognitive strategies. Framing concerns another mental strategy to optimize the decision-making process. Other anomalies lead to the same. All these cognitive biases impact our behaviors.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Cognitive anomalies
2. Heuristics
3. A list of heuristics
4. An example of heuristics: Gambler's fallacy
5. An example of heuristics: Loss aversion

SERIES OF MICRO LEARNINGS ON MARKET MANIPULATION – ABUSIVE SCHEMES (REMIT)

MARKET ABUSE

Under the Regulation on wholesale Energy Market Integrity and Transparency (REMIT), the Agency for the Cooperation of Energy Regulators (ACER) has developed a Guidance. The document, although it is legally non-binding, provides important insights in what is considered abusive, also in the sense of market manipulation. There are various types of market manipulation, being classified in categories of abuse. The abusive behaviors are quite diverse, including physical withholding, a typical activity not applicable to markets where equity or bonds are traded, but physical commodities.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following:

1. Recital 13
2. Recital 14
3. Guidance – Introduction
4. Guidance – Wash trade
5. Guidance – Improper matched order
6. Guidance – Placing orders with no intention executing them

SERIES OF MICRO LEARNINGS ON MARKET ABUSE
MARKET MANIPULATION – CROSS MARKET MANIPULATION

Cross-market manipulation involves undertaking trading in one market with a view to improperly influencing the price of the same or a related product in another market. A manipulator could transact (or place an order to transact) in one market to influence the behavior of market participants in another market, so that the manipulator can profit from the impact in the other markets. How this takes place appears in many forms, including cross-border, cross-time, cross-commodity, cross-jurisdiction, and so forth. Hence, various techniques have to be mastered in order to prevent or detect this form of market abuse.

This series of micro-learnings covers the following videos:

1. Introduction to cross-market manipulation
2. Classifying cross-market manipulation
3. Types of cross-market manipulation
4. Cross-border manipulation
5. Cross-commodity manipulation
6. Cross-regulation & cross-jurisdiction manipulation

Marking the close concerns a form of market manipulation. It concerns the manipulation of reference prices, such as settlement prices, indices or markers, which are used as reference to settle contracts, like commodity supply agreements of financial instruments, such as cash settled derivatives. Manipulation of a reference price would imply that invoicing takes place on an incorrect price reference. Analogously, positions are valued in an incorrect way. However, regulations which prohibit market abuse in financial markets aim to protect investors, while regulations which prohibit market abuse in commodity and energy markets aim to protect consumers.

This series of micro-learning covers the following videos:

1. Price positioning – Introduction
2. Price positioning – When and where?
3. Marking the close – Introduction
4. Settlement of commodity supply contracts
5. Settlement of derivatives contracts
